TARGET GROUPS

Indigent men, women, Orphans and those displaced by war and natural disasters.

Objective: Combating domestic violence, child abuse, rape, women exploitation, sexual harassment, human trafficking and offering aid to those displaced by war and natural disasters; as well as - facilitating, promoting and / or setting up women's education and scholarships, empowering women, setting up a professional institute for women, caring for widows and orphans, and providing help for the less privileged and all other issues related to the poor and displaced people, in Nigeria, the Netherlands (and sometimes from other countries in Europe and Africa), as well as the performance of all further acts, which are related to this in the broadest sense or which may be conducive thereto.

POLICY PLAN

The foundation tries to achieve its goal by, among other things, organizing information forums to raise awareness about the rights of women in the society and the dangers of domestic violence and human trafficking. It has become the personal mission of the Stichting Chevelyns Care Foundation to turn around the miserable situation of orphans, and poor widows in Nigeria – but also the poor and displaced persons in general – who have become victimized by injustice done to them. It is our goal to empower them with knowledge and to make them at cause again over their own lives. We plan to have a one-stop center where women can report and complain about rape, sexual harassment and human trafficking and where they can be informed about health and anti-conception. We will go to refugee camps to advise people and encourage them to be strong and independent. We intend to help men and women on their way to the application for admission to universities and to help them obtain scholarships. We welcome donations of food, clothing, medicines, money and computers and will work on the establishment of professional institutions to support the empowerment of women and to continue to give hope to the hopeless in the Society.

REVENUE

The Stichting Chevelyns Care Foundation has been carrying out projects in Nigeria on self-sponsorship and donations from family and friends in Nigeria. There has not been any project done in the Netherlands. We have approached the municipality of Venray severally, but there have been no help/advice nor any collaborative efforts in helping the Foundation achieve its goals. We resorted to hosting African men and women, organizing advice sessions, and coffee times where women especially those who were trafficked, those who are victims of domestic violence, rape, sexual harassment and students finding it difficult to meet up with the financial requirements associated with their study. All these issues are addressed in our small meetings with the victims. In all the projects we have done since 2018, there has not been any support from the Dutch nor from the Nigerian Government. All items used during the empowerment programs were donated by Humanity First, Youths for Human Rights Amsterdam and the Mundo foundation. Most importantly, all the monies paid into the Stichting Chevelyns Care Foundation ING bank account were contributions from the Board members. These monies are paid into the account to meet up with the tasks of running the Foundation pending when we are able to execute projects with support from donors and subsidies from the Dutch Government.

We also raise money through donations from private individuals and cooperate bodies and we plan to work with the government to initiate projects and programs to help the displaced people and the less privileged people, and to support in many other matters relating to the poor in Nigeria, the Netherlands, Africa, Europe and all over the World. The foundation has no profit motive.

REMUNERATION POLICY

The foundation's board and volunteers work selflessly and receive no compensation for their work. Expenses such as travel, accommodation, and conference fees are reimbursed when board members, volunteers, or speakers attend a conference or event relevant to promoting its mission, at the invitation of the foundation or an external organization and other miscellaneous expenses incurred in the course of carrying out a project or any other activities of the foundation.
